

Christine serves as the Director of Philanthropy at Hope's Garden, where she leads efforts to build lasting relationships and inspire generosity in support of the organization's mission. She holds a bachelor's degree in Communications with a minor in Public Health from Portland State University, a foundation that has strengthened her commitment to both meaningful connection and community well-being.

With a deep passion for service and a heart for people, Christine considers it the honor of her life to work for a mission that serves the Lord. Through her role, she strives to foster compassion, partnership, and hope—helping ensure that every woman who walks through Hope's Garden's doors has the opportunity to heal, grow, and thrive.
